Director's Note

Welcome back to another exciting season of theatre here at Carrollton School of the Sacred Heart. I am thrilled to present to you our fall play, This Changes Everything by Joel Horwood.

This Changes Everything is about a group of young women who have mysteriously disappeared. Before vanishing, few of the girls had known each other. They met on line, brought together by their shared disillusionment of humanity and the world at large. Unbeknown to the authorities, or even their families, these girls have relocated to an isolated platform out at sea. Their plan: to conceive a whole new and better way of creating a society. They call themselves The Community.

It's important to mention that this play is not set here, but it's not set very far from here. It's not set now, but it's set not far from now. The majority of action takes place on an offshore structure of some kind that is rusting and crumbling into the water. From here, on a good day when this light is just right, you can almost see the shore, but not quite.

It has been an absolute pleasure to work with this ensemble and witness their growth not only as actors and artists, but as young women. I am extremely proud of their commitment, ethic, positivity, and the friendships they have fostered. This cast and crew of over 20 students has risen to the occasion bringing you a wonderfully entertaining show. I hope you enjoy our play as much as we have enjoyed making it!

Theatrically Yours,
Ms. Carolina Ordonez
