FAMILY ALBUM

BY ROB
FRANKEL

Director's Note

When we started working on Family Album, I knew it was a play about family—but as rehearsals went on, it became about our family too. Somewhere between the laughter, the long rehearsals, and the silly moments in between, this group of students truly became one.

This show is just a snapshot—a single moment in their story together. But what you'll see tonight represents so much more than lines and blocking. It's trust, teamwork, growth, and friendship. They've learned how to listen, how to support each other, and how to tell a story with heart.

Theatre has a way of doing that—it turns a group of individuals into something greater than themselves. And though this chapter ends when the curtain closes, the memories and skills they've built will stay with them long after.

I'm so proud of this cast and crew, and I'm grateful you're here to share this moment with our theatre family.
